

Voices from Central State

This series features the patient perspective on life at Indiana's flagship psychiatric institution, Central State Hospital (1848-1994)

August 26 and 27, 2016 | 7:00

Then There Is No Need to Speak

A one-woman theatrical performance adapted from Anna Agnew's 1886 memoir detailing her seven-year hospitalization.

$5 / Free for students

September 26 and 27, 2016 | 6:00

I Remember Jones

A conversation with Nanny Vonnegut about her grandmother, life at Central State in the 1940s, and the power of narrative.

Free / $5 Suggested Donation

November 10, 2016 | 6:00

Leaving Home (exhibit opening)

Exhibit and panel discussion exploring patients' lives during the closure of Central State Hospital in 1994, based on patient-produced newsletters.

Free / $5 Suggested Donation

All programs to take place at the Indiana Medical History Museum.

Advance registration required. Visit www.imhm.org

Presented by IUPUI's Medical Humanities and Health Studies Program and the Indiana Medical History Museum. Assistance with the theatrical production "Then There is No Need to Speak" provided by Discover Near West Indys. Funding support from IU's New Frontiers Program, the IUPUI Arts & Humanities Institute, Indiana Humanities, and the Arts Council of Indianapolis.

INDIANA UNIVERSITY

WITH SUPPORT FROM THE NATIONAL ENDOWMENT FOR THE HUMANITIES