Graduate Course Descriptions

Prerequisite for all graduate courses: graduate standing or consent of the instructor.

R515 Sociology of Health and Illness (3 cr.) Surveys important areas of medical sociology, focusing on social factors influencing the distribution of disease, help-seeking, and health care. Topics covered include social epidemiology, the health-care professions, socialization of providers, and issues of cost and cost containment.

R517 Sociology of Work (3 cr.) Topics include the changing meaning of work, the quest for dignity in the workplace, the plight of the working poor, and the transformation of the culture of work and its impact on occupations and professions. The prospects for a revival of the labor movement will also be examined.

R525 Gender and Work (3 cr.) This course critically analyzes contemporary theory and research on gender and work. It examines how women’s and men’s roles in paid and unpaid work are socially constructed, through socialization, social interaction and the actions of social institutions. The interaction gender, race, ethnicity and social class will be explored.

R530 Families and Social Policy (3 cr.) This seminar will explore how the government and labor market affect family structure and the quality of family life. Students will study the implications of family research for social policy and learn to develop theoretical frameworks for evaluating social policies affecting families. Additional prerequisite: R220 or R314 or consent of the instructor.

R537 Gender in Society (3 cr.) Examines some of the central approaches to gender, emphasizing social interactionist and feminist theory/methods. In addition, we will relate these approaches to the study of contemporary gender approaches in selected social spheres.

R551 Quantitative Research Methods (3 cr.) Surveys the major quantitative techniques for investigating current sociological problems. It emphasizes the relationship between theory and practice in understanding and conducting research.

R556 Advanced Sociological Theory I (3 cr.) In depth study of classical sociological theorists particularly Marx, Durkheim, and Weber. Examines their roles in defining the discipline.

R557 Advanced Sociological Theory II (3 cr.) Reading and exercises will involve the student in close analysis and criticism of sociologists belonging to the idealist tradition of sociology. In this second part of a two-semester course in theory and theory construction in sociology, students will be required to demonstrate their mastery of the theorists studied, as well as to demonstrate their own abilities in theory design and construction.

R559 Intermediate Sociological Statistics (3 cr.) Basic techniques for summarizing distributions, measuring interrelationships, controlling extraneous influences, and testing hypotheses are reviewed, as students become familiar with the computer system. Complex analytical techniques commonly applied in professional literature are examined in detail, including analysis of variance, path diagrams, factor analysis, and log-linear models. Additional prerequisite: R359, equivalent or consent of the instructor.

R585 Social Aspects of Mental Health and Mental Illness (3 cr.) This focuses on the sociology of mental illness and mental health and provides a thorough grounding in the research issues and traditions that have characterized scholarly inquiry into mental illness in the past. Students will become familiar with public policy as it has had an impact on the treatment of mental illness and on the mentally ill themselves.
R594 Graduate Internship in Sociology (3-6 cr.) This course involves master’s degree students working in organizations where they apply or gain practical insight into sociological concepts, theories, knowledge, and methodology. Students analyze their experiences through work logs, a lengthy written report and regular meetings with a faculty committee.

Additional prerequisite: 18 hours of graduate credit in sociology.
(Students on the thesis track may also take this course as an elective.)

R610 Sociology of Health and Illness Behavior (3 cr.) This seminar explores sociological and social scientific research on health and illness behavior. Special emphasis is placed on examining how social factors and conditions shape people’s responses to disease, illness, and disability.

Additional prerequisite: R515 or consent of the instructor.
